

» What will history say about my silence? «

- The human drama of a moral conflict with far-reaching impact
- 50th commemoration of his death
- Contribution of the discussion of his beatification

Is Pope Pius XII (1939 - 1958) a savior of the Jews or is he partly guilty of the murder of millions of Jews? Both has been seriously disputed until today.

This book tells us the fascinated story based on newly available sources. Thereby it provides a deeper understanding of Eugenio Pacelli, who as a diplomat and Pope from 1933 - 1945 was constantly struggling for the right conduct.

The reader witnesses why the Pope vacillated between the necessity of wise reticence and duty of public uprising.
